

150 OVERCOATS AND FUR COATS

To Be Closed Out at a Low Price

A tremendous season's business has left our stock of Fur Coats and Overcoats in a broken condition as to sizes, and we find upon going over our stock after the holidays that we have about 150 garments still on hand, only one or two of a kind. These we have decided to close out at once at a price to move them quickly, and we can assure any intending purchaser that this will be one of the great money-saving opportunities of the year. The size and style you want may not be among these, but if it is, they certainly present an opportunity you should not miss. See the display in our windows.

Thirty-nine Odd Fur and Fur Lined Coats

These coats are the odd ones from our most salable lines. That's the reason the sizes are badly broken, so at the price we are going to make on them they will be the most exceptional value offered in Fur Coats this season. We can fit nearly everyone in some style, as they are mostly the medium sizes. Everything indicates that furs of every description will be in next year than this, owing to the growing scarcity of fur-bearing animals together with the largely increased demand for all kinds of fur goods. Confidently believe that we shall not again be able to offer to our customers such Fur Coat values as we do in this sale, and we strongly advise an inspection of any who are interested in fur garments.

BRATTLEBORO EASY.

Had a Regular Cinch With Up-State Pros.

Brattleboro, Vt., supports a professional basketball team. The above named team came to town last Friday night to try conclusions with the Athletics and was trimmed to a point. When the remnants were up the score stood 40 for the Athletics and 10 for the visitors. The Athletics scored by good team work while the visitors made a few shots from the center of the floor. After the first few minutes the only question was how would the score. All the local players showed good work but Oakes was the star. Dyer, who was Oakes' opponent, tried all kinds of tricks to get the youngster from scoring but was unsuccessful. Oakes dropped in baskets, carrying Dyer on his back most of the time. Stafford out on the warpath at the start of the game and never let up until the Athletics finished the game in good style. The Athletics were able to work over of pretty passes and some bits of team work since most of the visitors were left uncovered frequently. Visitors seemed unwilling to shoot near the basket and took most of their shots from the center of the floor. The Athletics, most of their attacks were misses. Summary: Springfield, 10; Brattleboro, 40. Score: Springfield 10, Brattleboro 40. Goals from floor, Oakes 4, Dyer 6, Long 6, Riley 4, Matthews 3, Barney 3, Lamb 2, points on fouls, Dyer missed, Lamb missed, one; referee, John H. Brattleboro; timer, James H. Brattleboro; scorer, H. E. Gould; time, 20 minutes; halves, 10 minutes each; attendance, 250.

NEWPORT TOO FAST.

Athletics Didn't Have a Chance to Win From Doyle's Bunch.

The Athletics were compelled to dip into Newport, N. H., again in a basketball game Tuesday evening by the score of 25 to 11. The local boys put up a fast and plucky game but were downed by the heavy Newport bunch. The Newport aggregation is without doubt the fastest basketball team playing the game in these parts. The game Tuesday evening was fast but would have been more interesting had it been apparent at any time that the Brattleboro boys had a show to win.

Bothwell was back in the game for the first time since his coasting accident and showed that his injuries made no difference in his playing. He shot in good shape and tackled anyone of the opposing team who had the ball and was in all the team work of the Athletics. Stafford played a fast game as did Long. Dyer was somewhat eclipsed by McGuigan. Riley played the giant game and stuck to him to the finish. Each managed to cage one basket. Doyle was the star of the game and made some shots which were marvelous. His back-hand shots with either hand were wonderful; his blocking and passing were excellent but his manner of disputing the referee showed poor judgment. McGuigan and Barracough played a good game.

The game went on for several minutes after the start without a score but then Barracough shook the bunch and dropped in a pretty one from near the basket. Bothwell raised the crowd by a nice shot and then Doyle shot four in succession, but Referee Howe refused to allow one of the baskets to count as it was shot from a dribble. Doyle sulked and played kid for a few minutes and then the game was renewed. Stafford squeezed in one from the floor before the half ended and the whistle sounded with the score 16 to 4 in favor of Newport. The local boys put up a gallant fight in the second half and worked up to within seven points of a tie when Doyle went on the rampage again and shot three more in quick succession. The game ended without more scoring from either side.

Summary: Springfield, 10; Brattleboro, 40. Score: Springfield 10, Brattleboro 40. Goals from floor, Oakes 4, Dyer 6, Long 6, Riley 4, Matthews 3, Barney 3, Lamb 2, points on fouls, Dyer missed, Lamb missed, one; referee, John H. Brattleboro; timer, James H. Brattleboro; scorer, H. St. Johnsbury Next!

Company D of St. Johnsbury and the Athletics will collide for the first time of the season on the local floor next Wednesday evening. The game will be a good one if the standing of the two teams is any criterion. "Rusty" Ellis will be with the visitors and Pat Doyle of Newport will line up with the Athletics. The game was originally scheduled for next Tuesday night but the Newport team was unable to occupies the theater then and the basketball game had to be postponed until the following night.

BELASCO'S OWN PLAY.

Some Facts About The Girl of the Golden West to Be Seen Here Tuesday.

The announcement that The Girl of the Golden West, written and staged by Belasco himself, comes to the Auditorium next Tuesday night can only be of extraordinary interest to local students of things dramatic. This play has delighted audiences that crowded the wealth. As a result the various mining camps were settlements containing a motley population, made up of the weak and the strong, the worker, the drone, and him who aided chance with his skill at cards—the gambler. Where the community made and executed its own laws and the habit of carrying weapons not infrequently brought trifling altercations to fatal endings, life was bound to have a dash of adventure and uncertainty vouchsafed to an existence in an older and more regulated community.

The scenes of The Girl of the Golden West are laid in just such a mining camp, in the great Sierras. Numbered among the inhabitants are three figures silhouetted against the general human background. They are Minnie Smith, "the girl," who owns and conducts the Polka saloon, the rendezvous of miners; Jack Rance, the gambler and sheriff of Cloudy County, holding his office by strength of character, superior intelligence, and absolute fearlessness; and third, Ramerrez, the road agent, whose highway robberies and theft of the girl's heart is the mainspring of the plot of the play. The Girl of the Golden West is entirely the handiwork of David Belasco and that it is of extraordinary merit the known skill of the playwright and the fact that it has remained in New York for twelve consecutive months, attest.

Inasmuch as the production is concerned The Girl of the Golden West is in every way up to the Belasco standard. The Sierra Nevada mountains in mid winter offer a wide range of possibilities to a producer of such exceptional accomplishments, and Mr. Belasco has taken advantage of every opportunity offered for the creation of beautiful and impressive scenic effects.

Minnie Lucy Bartlett.

Miss Minnie Lucy Bartlett, 13, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Bartlett of 3 Grove street, died at the Memorial hospital Saturday afternoon after an operation performed a week previous for appendicitis. The young girl went to school as usual a week ago last Friday but was taken ill in the afternoon and conveyed immediately to the hospital where an operation was performed at 3 o'clock the following morning. The operation was successful but, owing to the advanced stages of the disease complications set in soon afterward and death resulted from paralysis of the bowels.

Miss Bartlett was born in Franklin, N. H., June 3, 1894, and came to this town four years ago with her parents. She was a member of the sixth grade of the grammar school department in the High school building. Her health since coming to this town had not been of the best and she had been behind in her school work on that account. She was a bright child and beloved by all her teachers and schoolmates for her pleasant disposition and lovable ways. She leaves besides her parents, three sisters, Ethel, Ruby and Ruth, and two brothers, Warren and Brock, all living at home. The sympathy of the community is with the family in its affliction. The funeral was held at St. Michael's Episcopal church Monday afternoon. A large number of the friends of the little girl showed their appreciation of her lovable qualities by beautiful wreaths and other cut flowers. A choir composed of Misses Katherine and Helen Martin, and Miss Gilman and Mrs. R. C. Bacon sang Asleep in Jesus and the Funeral Chant. The body was taken to the Morningside cemetery where it was placed in the mausoleum to await burial.

same desire—the rapid accumulation of Belasco theatre, New York, for the past twelve months.

The Girl of the Golden West is a drama of California in the days of '49. It has four acts and as many set scenes. No phase of American history contains more dramatic material than that section concerning the rush of gold seekers to the Pacific coast. There gathered on the slopes of the Sierra Nevada mountains almost every type and class of human being, all possessed of the wealth. As a result the various mining camps were settlements containing a motley population, made up of the weak and the strong, the worker, the drone, and him who aided chance with his skill at cards—the gambler. ### AN IMPOSTOR AT WORK.

Man Claiming to be Civil War Veteran Asking for Help.

Col. Thomas Hannon, superintendent of the Soldiers' Home in Bennington is working his way through the southern part of the state by representing himself to be a former resident of Bennington and veteran of the Civil War.

Col. Hannon has received three different communications regarding the man, the last of which was from Chester. Previous to this the man had put in an appearance in Massachusetts and in Grafton, this state. The wanderer tells several different stories. One is that he has been an inmate of the Soldiers' Home, and is on his way back to that institution but lacks the funds to make the journey. Another representation is that he has personal property here that he wishes to secure. He gives his name as Eugene Otis Cole, a fact that stamps him as an impostor for the roster of the Vermont troops in the Civil War shows that Eugene Otis Cole was a resident of Bennington, but that he was also Lieutenant colonel of the 5th Vermont and that he now resides in the West and has not been East for over 20 years.
